

Abstract

For a hardtop vehicle roof having three roof parts which are jointly supported against the body in a 5 layered manner above the central roof part in the form of a package and of which the front and the rear roof parts are coupled to the central roof part and, situated in the same direction with respect to each other and with respect to the central roof part, can be 10 pivoted in over the central roof part, a common drive is provided for the front and rear roof part and is assigned to the central roof part.